

Roy Emerson

Roy Emerson was one of the nicest and most intelligent men I think I have ever met. My contact with him over the years, with both CIEH and IFEH has left me a richer person. Roy was always approachable, he would listen, and had the knack of making your problem seem much less unsolvable than it had five minutes before.

His contribution to Environmental Health has been immense, at local, national and international levels, and hopefully now that he has left us, I hope that we can think of some tangible method of perpetuating his memory.

Goodbye to a colleague, and more importantly, a friend.

Bryn Jones
FCIEH

Former Secretary and Chairman
IFEH